“Timeless Love”

~ Paris Hines

I realize when I look deep in your eyes
The light inside starts to minimize
Like a deep regret a longing for love
But you had it all along from the Lord up above
What’s the secret to life we all wonder sometimes
We feel like we’re drowning like we’re going under That’s just a phase
Get out of that daze
Follow the light, get out of that dark place
Your smile, your grit, your yearning to know more even something as small as the 49ers making a score
It didn’t take much to make you happy
Even if you were a little bit snappy
The good, the bad, even when you were sad
Through it all I love you dad
You won’t be forgotten
the world needed to know you, Harvey Jackson
Is who this poem is for.

OBITUARY

Mr. Harvey Alvin Jackson was born in Winston-Salem, NC on February 3, 1964 to the late Junius Jackson and Barbara Coleman Isom. He was educated in the local public schools and graduated from Parkland High School, class of 1982.

Affectionately known as “Wall Banger”, he was a jack of all trades. Harvey worked for Hampton Inn in Bermuda Run and was a groundskeeper for the City of Winston-Salem. He was the go-to man for maintenance and mechanics and a hard worker to the end. Harvey was the neighborhood hero, had a heart of gold and took care of his neighbors with his hands and his heart. He both loved to eat and play chess with passion. He also loved the children and the dogs in the neighborhood. He kept a smile on his face and would keep you laughing. Everyone will miss him...we got your school girl.

Harvey passed away on January 7, 2025 from complications following an automobile accident in July, 2024. He was preceded in death by his father and brother-in-law, Oscar Gwyn.

He is survived by his daughters: Shirley Hines and Paris Hines; his mother, Barbara Coleman (Jerry) Isom; his sister, Janice Jackson Gwyn; brother Junious Jackson; special friend, Sylvia Bonaparte; a host of aunts, uncles, nieces, nephews.
