Orgone Energy Research:
Crucial Support from New Scientific and Medical Discoveries with
Conny Huthsteiner, MD
Psychiatrist and Medical Orgonomist

We are excited to have Dr. Conny Huthsteiner with us for an examination of the connections between Wilhelm Reich's medical and scientific work and leading edge research being done today on such diverse topics as cell pulsation, weather modification, and zero-point energy. Dr. Huthsteiner will demonstrate that Reich's energy findings are being confirmed by leading edge research and also point the way to even more fundamental work that needs to be done.

Dr. Huthsteiner is the vice-president of the Institute for Orgonomic Science and a psychiatrist and medical orgonomist in private practice. She studied medicine, and trained in psychosomatic medicine, at the University of Munich, Germany. She also trained at the Mayo Clinic and Boston University. For many years, she was Staff at Harvard Medical School.

She is planning an experimental clinical trial on the use of orgone energy blankets on burns with a colleague. She is the author of an important article on weather engineering published in the Annals of the Institute for Orgonomic Science. Her information on weather modification could not be more relevant in light of the climate change crisis we are facing. She has also written a feature screenplay about Wilhelm Reich.
