Refurbished Siempre Verde Opens Again

The arrival of the “Truth Is Beauty” statue wasn’t the only news on Saturday – Siempre Verde Park re-opened after a year-long remodeling.

A new playground, jungle gym and basketball courts bring new life to the park between San Leandro Boulevard and Park Avenue. The grassy open area now has mounds that give the park more dimension.

“We love it,” said Frankie Chavez as he played football with his son Nicholas and a couple of friends.

“We were hoping for a baseball park, but this is beautiful, though,” Chavez said. “The grass is lovely, the hills and all they

‘Truth Is Beauty’ Statue Arrives in Town

By Jim Knowles
San Leandro Times

The “Truth Is Beauty” statue finally rolled into town on Saturday on a flatbed semi truck, followed by fanfare and speeches in downtown San Leandro.

This week, the statue was erected at the new OSISOFT building next to the San Leandro BART Station, lifted into place by a longtime San Leandro company, Bigge Crane.

Now, an office building that houses hundreds of high-tech workers will look out their window at the the 55-foot-tall, stainless-steel statue of a voluptuous nude woman. And as one of our readers said in a letter, “It will be the first time those tech guys have seen one of those.”

When the semi arrived on Saturday, civic leaders proclaimed the statue as a symbol of a change in San Leandro, as well as a monument to feminine empowerment.

“How appropriate that we have a strong woman here today,” said City Councilwoman Deborah Cox as she introduced Congresswoman Barbara Lee as

Now Council Wants to Limit More Pot Shops

After approving three marijuana stores, the barn door is closing

By Amy Sylvestri
San Leandro Times

At the same meeting where they approved a third medical marijuana dispensary permit, the San Leandro City Council moved to put a moratorium on additional dispensaries in town on their next agenda.

Councilwoman Corina Lopez requested that an ordinance be placed on the council’s Oct. 17 agenda which will stop additional medical marijuana dispensaries from opening in the city.

If that moratorium is approved later this month, it will immediately prohibit dispensaries for 45 days, after which the council can extend the ban for one year.

“I’m not looking for this to be permanent, it’s just time for the operators (of the three permitted dispensaries) to take root,” said Lopez.

The timing of the moratorium comes on the heels of the approval of two medical marijuana dispensaries in the past few months. And the modification of the city’s cannabis ordinance that allowed the third dispensary to get a permit was introduced and approved within a period of just two-weeks.

Dan Grace, the owner of Harborside who received the first permit, accused the council of “moving the goalposts” by giving out two more permits before he could even open the doors to his dispensary. Besides the speed in which the ordinance was changed, the council has come under criticism for cronyism in their distribution of medical marijuana sales

Only BART Bond Sees Opposing Argument

By Amy Sylvestri
San Leandro Times

Out of the eight local tax measures in the November 8 election, only one has an argument against it on the ballot.

Only Measure RR, a $3.5 billion bond proposed by BART, has received an official argument that will appear on the ballot.

The BART board of directors say the Measure RR money would be used to upgrade 90 miles of worn tracks, repair tunnels damaged by water intrusion, and enhance the 44-year-old train control system.

But opponents – including the Alliance of Contra Costa Taxpayers – see BART, page 16

Fire in San Leandro Displaces Residents and Kills Cat

Two neighbors had to be rescued from a nearby residence when a fire broke out at a home near Bella Vista Avenue and Lorraine Boulevard in San Leandro on Sunday morning.

The two-alarm fire started at around 7:15 a.m. with heavy smoke and flames coming from the back of the house. The fire was extinguished in about 20 minutes, according to the Alameda County fire Department, who helped evacuate the neighbors.

Investigators say the fire started in the backyard and spread to the home. The cause of the fire is still being determined.

A cat died in the fire but two others were able to be rescued by the home's residents. Two other cats are still missing. No other injuries were reported.

The two residents have been displaced as a result of the fire and have found a place to stay.

San Leandro Man Leads CHP on Car Chase That Ends in Flames in East Oakland

A San Leandro man was arrested after a car chase that went through multiple cities ended in a fiery wreck in Oakland early Monday morning.

Terry Nguyen, 29, faces charges including felony evasion, drug possession, driving under the influence, and driving on a suspended license, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Nguyen allegedly refused to stop for a CHP patrol officer who attempted to pull his GMC Yukon over on westbound I-580 near Highway 13 in Oakland for not having a license plate at around 1:30 a.m.

The suspect then led CHP officers on a chase that began when he exited the westbound lanes and turned onto the eastbound lanes of I-580. He drove from Oakland into San Leandro, then Castro Valley, and got on I-880 and continued into Hayward, driving at or below the speed limit the entire time.

Nguyen then turned around again and drove northbound on I-880 back toward Oakland. CHP officers put a spike strip down on I-880 near the Davis Street exit, which the suspect ran over before exiting at 98th Avenue into East Oakland.

The chase continued on Oakland city streets with the GMC on fire as Nguyen's wheels wore through and he began driving on his metal rims.

Finally, Nguyen stopped near the intersection of 106th and Longfellow avenues and surrendered to CHP officers.

Man Sentenced in Killing of San Lorenzo Teen

Late last month, an Alameda County Superior Court judge sentenced Sonny Anderson to 37 years-to-life in the hit-and-run death of a San Lorenzo teen.

Anderson, 36, was sentenced for the November 2014 death of San Lorenzo High School freshman Ivan Cruz.

Cruz had been returning home from riding his scooter at a park and was crossing an intersection near Ashland Avenue when Anderson struck and killed him during a police car chase while Anderson was high on methamphetamine.

Anderson evaded arrest at the time of the killing, but police later found the car abandoned in Fremont and traced it to a relative of Anderson's, authorities said. Anderson was also found guilty of gross vehicular manslaughter while intoxicated, hit and run, and felony animal abuse for punching a police dog at the time of his arrest for Cruz's death.

Hernandez Says He Won't Bow to Special Interests

By Amy Sylvestri
San Leandro Times

In the coming weeks before the Nov. 8 election, we'll speak with the candidates running for the San Leandro City Council and School board.

Ed Hernandez is one of two candidates in the only contested City Council race, running against Bryan Acevedo in District 2.

Hernandez is currently the chair of the Planning Commission and says that experience, along with a background in managerial psychology, and a desire to help San Leandro grow, give him an edge over opponent Bryan Acevedo.

"I'm glad we are going through this process of election and I'm not running unopposed, because being challenged strengthens thought," said Hernandez.

Hernandez says that what sets him apart from his opponent is that he is not a puppet of any special interests.

"He is involved with special interests, especially unions," Hernandez said about Acevedo.

Acevedo's list of endorsements is union heavy, including the San Leandro Police Officers Association. Meanwhile Hernandez counts two current City Council members and multiple members of the city's various commissions among his supporters.

"I have more local leaders endorsing me," said Hernandez. "I met with the police union and it was great, but they told me their executive leadership had to go in another direction. There is labor pressure."

In the past the City Council has been accused of bending too easily to the whims of the police department, specifically when the armored vehicle was approved. Hernandez says that if elected, he'll do his due diligence before making any decision.

"I think there is a challenge there, especially given that the council is a part-time job, so they count on police to be the subject matter experts," said Hernandez. "But the council is in charge of keeping a balanced discussion and the best interests of the entire community in mind. Get reports, challenge the department with thorough questions and do what's best for the people of San Leandro."

Hernandez says he's seen a lot happen in the five years he's been on the city's Planning Commission, with an emphasis on attracting tech jobs and growing businesses in the city, but he says there needs to be an equal focus on the city's residents.

"We are being urbanized, like it or not," said Hernandez. "The reason people might be afraid of that is because they don't understand it. Growing business can help pay for support services if the economy is healthy. But the danger is that people feel they are being left behind. We need to make sure everyone in San Leandro is taken care of and that having tech business is a win-win for everyone."

Hernandez says that during his work on the Planning Commission he helped identify sites where affordable housing can be built around town.

"Housing is going to be one of our biggest challenges and if we don't start to find housing for everyone now, there will be an even bigger crisis down the line," said Hernandez.

In his own district, he says the Bayfair area "is key." There must be mixed use developments and high-density housing in the area, he said.

Hernandez supports all of the bonds and tax measures on the San Leandro ballot this fall – he spent last weekend phone banking for J1, the school district's $104 million facilities bond.

On the topic of medical marijuana dispensaries, Hernandez says it's time for the city to slow down. With three approved in San Leandro and up to four in the nearby unincorporated area, the needs of medical marijuana patients will be served.

"It's time to pause for now," said Hernandez. "I think before we move forward we need to look at quarterly reviews of the dispensaries that will be operating – to look at safety, and violations, and other issues that pop up. If marijuana is legalized for adult recreational use, using caution in the dispensaries we do have will be even more important."

Hernandez says San Leandro is about to go through some major changes with more businesses and an expanding population and the city needs the right leadership.

"This city is going through a transformation and we need people with a track record of being involved," said Hernandez. "I'd like the opportunity to continue the work of shaping our future. Together we'll get ahead."

Hernandez is a real estate manager and has lived in San Leandro for 12 years with his wife Katherine and two daughters. His website is edhernandez-forcitycouncil.com.

did – it's really nice. And there's better equipment for the kids."

Nearby, the jungle gym was teaming with kids climbing all over it on Saturday afternoon. In the other corner of the park, guys played a game of basketball.

It cost $3.6 million to remodel the park, so there's a lot of green in Siempre Verde. The work includes barbecue pits, picnic tables, restrooms, exercise stations and a space for tai chi. The "drought-friendly" field is irrigated with water from a new well.

At the opposite end of the park, a woman sat quietly on the bench under the flagpoles and watched the kids playing in the grass.

Those flagpoles stand over another feature at Siempre Verde, the memorial wall that was built by the Golden Gate Chapter of the 82nd Airborne Division. The plaques on the wall face San Leandro Boulevard and represent the 82nd Airborne and other military units.

Speaking to the newspaper, Mayor Pauline Cutter said she was glad to see the park open, because it shows that the city is working not just for high tech, but for all the people. The park is something the neighborhood really uses, she said.

Kia Sportage Challenges All Competitors

By Steve Schaefer
San Leandro Times

The Kia Sportage is all new for 2017, but it still resembles the previous, third, generation. Kia's oldest nameplate, the Sportage, was the way most Americans were introduced to the Korean brand back in the 1990s, when it debuted, slightly ahead of the now-ubiquitous Toyota RAV4 and Honda CR-V.

What's new? Well, just about everything. For starters, the Sportage has received the design treatment from Kia president and chief design officer Peter Schreyer. He's the guy who, before assuming his duties at Hyundai/Kia, made Audis so beautiful. You can see how his team took the overall look of the last model and enhanced it, giving it a more expensive, higher quality look and feel. Where crossovers often look more like their SUV ancestors, the Sportage wears sportier lines and has a more carlike stance.

That feeling transfers to the inside, too, where upgraded materials and sophisticated design read more German luxury than Korean value brand. The black interior appointments with silvery accents evoke a more European feel than the last iteration, with proportions that are easy on the eye.

My test unit, a top-level SX Turbo model in a gleaming Burnished Copper paint job, actually got compliments from folks when I was driving by or walking away from it.

From a driving standpoint, Kia has redone the suspension and made the body stronger, using much more high-strength steel. There's a whole lot more sound-absorbent materials too, and clever tricks like quad bushings in the rear suspension to isolate road noise.

The new model is slightly larger, sitting on a 1.2-inch-longer wheelbase and extending 1.6 inches longer overall. That might not sound like much, but the car feels roomier inside, and cargo space with the second-row seat up grows from 26.1 to 30.7 cubic feet. That number doubles to 60.1 when you flip down the rear seat. And, there's the dual-level, widened cargo area back there, too.

Sportages come in three levels — LX, EX and SX Turbo. The LX and EX employ a 2.4-liter four-cylinder engine that generates a reasonable 181 horsepower and 175 lb.-ft. of torque. Opt for the SX Turbo and you get a turbocharged 2.0-liter four with 240 horsepower and 260 lb.-ft. of torque — a mightier proposition. You can order up all-wheel drive on any Sportage, but it'll cost you three horsepower with the SX Turbo.

The SX Turbo is pretty well loaded with the features people want. The leather seats upgrade the interior substantially, and you'll get a larger touchscreen to control climate, audio and navigation. Those leather seats are heated and ventilated — an upscale double-whammy. While other Sportages come with a standard 160-watt audio system, the SX Turbo has the 320-watt Harman Kardon eight-speaker setup, which includes a subwoofer and is crystal clear in the near silence of the well-damped cabin.

The SX Turbo also gives you a nice leather-wrapped steering wheel in a sport "D" shape — that means a flat bottom. It feels funny in turns at first, but is a real sporty car touch. You also get cool "ice cube" fog lamps, alloy pedals, stitching on the dashboard, HID headlamps, LED taillamps, snazzy metallic skid plates, and 19-inch alloy wheels. Firmer shocks on the SX help make it handle more tautly.

The Sportage started out as a compact, modest little runabout, but at nearly two tons now, and loaded to the gunwales with premium features, it's more of a mid-size vehicle. Its EPA fuel economy numbers are decent for its size and weight — 20 City, 23 Highway, and 21 Overall — but this is no longer a real economy ride. The Green scores are a 6 for Smog and only a 4 for Greenhouse Gas. I averaged 22.4 mpg, so those numbers are refreshingly accurate — it's rare when I beat the EPA Overall figure.

Some Hyundai and Kia vehicles are made in the U.S. these days, but the Sportage is all Korean. I'm not sure that's meaningful, but it does hail from Gwangju, Korea.

There's a wide assortment of safety/driver assistance features, including Forward Collision

The SX Turbo features a nice leather-wrapped steering wheel in a sporty shape with a flat bottom.

Alert, Lane Departure Warning, Blind Spot Detection, Rear Cross Traffic Alert, Front & Rear Parking Assist, and more. These features are becoming industry standards, but it's good for this "small SUV" to have them.

Pricing starts at $23,885 for the LX with front-wheel drive. The SX Turbo with all-wheel drive, like my tester, starts at $34,895, and that's the sticker price of my test car, which was so loaded that it really needed no options. Prices shown include $895 for shipping.

Kia, with its broad range of competitive products, has high hopes for the Sportage, with its long roster of features, European design sense, and just-right sizing. And, with top-level initial quality scores from JD Power, Kia is really onto something.

Great Ways to Roast a Chicken

A roasted chicken can be the anchor of a simple family supper or the most festive dinner party. And preparing it is simple.

Wash the chicken in cold water and dry with paper towels. Trim away pads of visible fat. Keep it refrigerated until roasting time. Tuck in the wings and tie the legs together with string after seasoning.

A 3-pound chicken will take about 50 minutes to roast.

When roasting is done, let the chicken rest out of the oven on a warm serving platter for about 10 minutes. Pierce the meat between the thigh and breast area with a sharp knife to be sure it's fully cooked; the juices should run clear, not pink. If pink, roast for another 10 minutes or so.

While the chicken is in the oven, it doesn't require any fussing or basting.

BASIC ROAST CHICKEN

- 1 (3-pound) chicken
- Stuffing (optional)
- 1/4 pound butter, softened

- 2 teaspoons finely crumbled dried sage
- Salt
- Freshly ground pepper

Rinse the chicken and pat dry. Remove fat pads at opening of the cavity. Fill body and neck cavities with stuffing, if desired.

Blend butter and sage. Rub mixture inside and out, covering chicken all over. Season with salt and pepper. Place chicken, breast side up, using V-shaped rack to hold.

Roast at 350°F for about 50 minutes until meat thermometer registers 160°F, or make small slit with knife at second joint where leg connects. If juice run clear, chicken is done. Remove and let stand for 10 minutes. Serves 4 to 6.

ROAST CHICKEN WITH ORANGE & ROSEMARY

- 1 (4-pound) roasting chicken
- 1 tablespoon dried rosemary
- 1 tablespoon safflower oil
- 2 large cloves garlic, minced

- 1 large shallot, minced
- 2 tablespoons Dijon mustard
- 2 teaspoons grated orange zest
- 3 tablespoons orange juice
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Freshly ground pepper
- 1 orange, cut into sixths

Rinse chicken and pat dry. Trim fat. Place chicken, breast-side up, on foil-lined shallow roasting pan. Mix 2 teaspoons rosemary with oil, garlic, shallot, mustard, orange zest and juice, salt and pepper in small dish.

Using fingers, carefully separate skin from entire breast area of chicken without tearing, making a pocket. Spoon 2 tablespoons of the orange mixture into pocket. Massage gently on surface to distribute mixture evenly over breast area.

Sprinkle remaining rosemary into cavity of chicken. Add orange segments. Smear remaining orange mixture over surface of chicken. Tuck wings under body and tie legs together.

Place pan on rack in center of 450°-oven and roast until juice from thigh area run clear (not pink), about 1 hour, 5 minutes. Transfer from pan to warm serving platter.

Let rest 10 minutes before carving. Garnish with orange slices from cavity. Makes 4 servings.

ROAST CHICKEN WITH GARLIC

- 2 (3-pound) whole chickens
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons dried oregano leaves
- 20 large cloves garlic, unpeeled
- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 3 tablespoons dry white wine
- Freshly ground pepper

Preheat oven to 450°F. Rinse chicken and pat dry. Trim visible fat. Place chicken, breast-side up, on foil-lined shallow roasting pan.

Divide 1/4 teaspoon salt and 1/2 tablespoon oregano leaves between 2 chicken cavities, sprinkling evenly. Split 16 garlic cloves and place 8 in each cavity.

Peel and mince remaining garlic. Mix with remaining salt and oregano, olive oil, wine and pepper in small dish. Using fingers, carefully separate skin from entire breast area of one chicken without tearing, making pocket.

Spoon 1-1/2 tablespoons garlic mixture into pocket. Massage gently on surface to distribute evenly over breast area. Repeat with other chicken.

Smear remaining garlic mixture over surfaces of chickens, dividing evenly. Tuck wings under body and tie legs together. Leave at least 3-inch space between chickens.

Place pan on rack in center of 450°F-oven and roast until juices from thigh area run clear, about 50 minutes.

Transfer from pan to warm serving platter and let rest 10 minutes before carving or cutting up into serving portions. Serves 6.

ROAST CHICKEN WITH SMOTHERED POTATOES

- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 (3-pound) whole chicken

- 8 red potatoes, cut in halves
- 3 medium red onions, cut in quarters

- Salt, pepper
- 1 tablespoon fresh chopped rosemary, or 2 teaspoons dried, crushed
- 2 large cloves garlic, finely chopped

Brush 13x9-inch baking dish with 1 tablespoon olive oil. Using sharp knife or poultry shears, cut chicken down back along edges of backbone; discard backbone.

Thoroughly rinse chicken in cold water and remove pads of fat around breast and cavity areas. Sprinkle potatoes and red onions with salt and pepper to taste. Place potatoes in middle of oiled baking dish. Sprinkle rosemary and garlic over them. Spread out whole chicken over potatoes, arranging onions around edge. Drizzle and rub remaining 2 tablespoons olive oil over chicken. Season generously with salt and pepper.

Roast at 425°F for 45 to 50 minutes, or until skin of chicken is nicely browned. Pour off all liquid and garnish with fresh rosemary sprigs. Serves 4.

Annual Sausage & Suds Festival Enjoyed by All

Uriah Duffy, Rhonda "Bobcat" Racely and Cheryl "Peacock" Clifford (at left) sipped their beers and listened to the music on Parrott Street at the annual Sausage & Suds Music Festival on Sunday. A good crowd came to downtown San Leandro for the beer from the tap and sausage cooked on an open flame. The Cold-Sol Band kicked off the day, followed by Zeparrella, The Tommy Igoe Band (whose guitarist is seen at right), Avance, and the Spazmatics. All the while, the crowd also found their way to nearby taverns where the Raiders and 49ers broadcast could be seen. It was altogether another great year for the Sausage & Suds Festival held in the Sausage Capitol of California.

How, When to Apply for Social Security Retirement Benefits

By Jim Miller
Special to the Times

The Social Security Administration offers three ways to apply for your retirement and/or spouses benefits, depending on your preference and how much help you need.

Here's a rundown of the options, along with a list of information you'll need to apply, and when to fill out the application.

How To Apply

The easiest and most convenient way to apply for your Social Security benefits is to do it yourself online at SocialSecurity.gov. It takes less than 15 minutes to complete the application, as long as you've gathered all of the required information and documentation (more on that at the bottom of the column).

If, however, you'd rather have a Social Security employee assist with the process, you can also apply by phone at 800-772-1213, or at your local Social Security office.

If you apply in person, be sure to call ahead and schedule an appointment to cut your wait time.

Whichever method you feel most comfortable using, your application will be reviewed and processed as soon as all necessary documentation and information is received. And, the Social Security Administration will notify you if it turns out you could qualify for higher benefits on your spouse's record, or if other family members can receive benefits on your work record.

When To Apply

While full retirement age is currently 66 (for those born between 1943 and 1954) you can start receiving your Social Security retirement benefits as early as age 62 or as late as age 70, but the longer you wait, the larger your monthly check. See ssa.gov/retire/estimator.html to estimate your benefits.

Social Security recommends that you apply for retirement benefits three months before you want your payments to start. So, if you want your benefits to begin as soon as you turn 62, you should apply at 61 years and nine months old.

It's also worth noting that if you start receiving your Social Security retirement benefits before age 65, you will automatically be enrolled in Medicare Part A and Part B, and you'll receive your Medicare card about three months before your 65th birthday. It will include instructions to return it if you have work coverage that qualifies you for late enrollment.

But if you decide to delay your retirement benefits, you'll need to sign up just for Medicare at age 65, which you can also do at SocialSecurity.gov, over the phone at 800-772-1213 or through your local Social Security office.

If you do not sign up, in some circumstances, your Medicare coverage may be delayed and cost more.

Need Information

In order to apply for Social Security benefits, you'll need to be able to document some information about your identity and work history. So, before applying, have the following information handy:

- Your Social Security number.
- Your birth certificate (original or certified).
- Proof of U.S. citizenship or lawful alien status if you were not born in the United States.
- A copy of your U.S. military service papers if you had military service before 1968.
- A copy of your W-2 forms and/or self-employment tax return for last year.
- Your bank information (including your account number and the bank routing number) you want your benefits direct deposited to.

You can start receiving Social Security retirement benefits as early as age 62 or as late as age 70.

For a complete checklist of information you'll need to complete your application, see ssa.gov/hlp/isba/10/isba-checklist.pdf.

Follow the Law When Hiring a Full-time Caregiver

By Gene L. Osofsky, Esq.
Special to the Times

I plan to hire a full-time caregiver for my husband, and I want to make sure that I handle everything legally. Do you have any suggestions as to how I handle payment or anything else?

Yes. There are specific rules about handling the payroll, tax and employment law aspects of hiring household help, especially a caregiver. Here are some tips:

1. Classify Your Hire Correctly: One of the most common mistakes is to treat the hire as an independent contractor, when they are really an employee.

If you have the right to control how, when and in what manner your caregiver handles the job, the individual is an employee and should be so treated. As such, you must make proper payroll deductions when you pay them, and furnish a form W-2 Wage and Tax Statement to them each year.

Knowingly mis-classifying your hire as an independent contractor could be viewed as tax evasion and could subject you to penalties and back tax payments.

2. Do Not Confuse Gross Pay with Net Pay: Gross pay, less payroll deductions, equals net pay. Make sure that both you and your hire are on the same page.

At the time of employment, prepare a sample payroll stub which shows gross income, deductions, and net pay and discuss this. Doing so can help avoid any misunderstandings.

Both the IRS and the Franchise Tax Board have easy-to-follow publications to assist you. You might ask your tax preparer to show you how to do this once, so you can do it yourself each payroll period thereafter. They can also prepare quarterly reports for you to send to the IRS and FTB. You might also handle this by using an online payroll service (e.g. Payroll.Intuit.com, or Care.com/HomePay) to do it for you.

3. Pay Overtime Correctly. A 2014 California law called the Domestic Worker Bill Of Rights, requires the payment of overtime to a person employed to assist with domestic work (including caregiving) if they work more than 9 hours in any single day or more than 45 hours in the work week.

Overtime is at the rate of 1.5 times the regular hourly rate. This requirement cannot be circumvented by offering a fixed salary: fixed salaries are legal for "exempt" workers (generally white-collar professionals), but are illegal when employing a nonexempt worker such as a caregiver.

4. Secure a Workers Compensation Insurance Policy. Protect your hire, as well as yourself, in the event they are injured on the job.

Families who do not have workers compensation coverage expose themselves to significant financial liability. You may be able to do this by purchasing a special endorsement to your homeowner's policy, often at a modest expense.

Be sure to tell your insurance agent that you are seeking an endorsement for an employee performing domestic work in your home on a regular basis, and not for someone performing occasional work on your premises.

Handling the employment relationship appropriately can be mutually beneficial: You will be complying with law, protecting yourself from financial surprises, and may find that your payments to your caregiver are tax-deductible.

At the same time, you will create benefits for your employee in the form of contributions toward Social Security, Medicare, unemployment and state disability, and provide a documented source of employment income to enable her to apply for credit.

Following these basic guidelines will help foster a long-lasting relationship.

GUEST COMMENTARY

The No. 1 Question Asked by Buyers

People want to know if there's something wrong with the neighborhood

Buyers ask questions when looking at homes and, overall, it is a wise practice. It's best to get answers up front rather than discover nasty surprises after escrow closes. Buyer's agents are used to queries and have typically fielded hundreds of them.

The No. 1 Question? "Why is the seller selling?"

On the surface, it seems fairly innocuous, but it has dark undertones. Buyers really want to know if there is some deep, mysterious reason the previous occupants are going through the hassle of relocating. Translated: "Does Jason live next door?" "Are there sex offenders in the neighborhood?" "Do the neighbors have wild parties, mean dogs, loud motorcycles, etc.?" "What is the neighborhood really like?"

Problem is, unless the answer is written in the documentation somewhere,* the buyer's agent usually has absolutely no idea. And, in some cases, the listing agent does not know the real reasons either.

There are situations where it's obvious. The sellers may have accepted a job in another state. They could be moving up to a larger home. It could be an older couple that no longer needs a 4-bedroom home. If it's an estate sale, chances are the owners have died or can no longer live in the home.

Other reasons, however, may not be as obvious. And, truth be known, if the sellers are moving away due to neighborhood issues, chances are they are not going to be totally forthcoming about their reasons for exiting.

While they are bound to disclose pertinent facts in their disclosures such as neighborhood noise, proximity to traffic, airplanes, death in the home and the like, they should not disclose information about specific neighbors that might be viewed as slander.

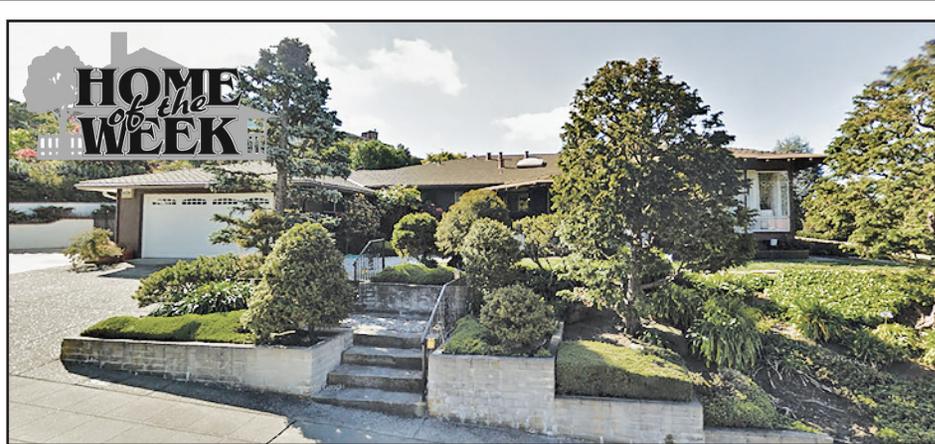

Realtors, also leery of disparagement and resultant lawsuits are, in addition, bound to strict fair housing laws governing what they can or cannot disclose. Nicknamed "steering," the law specifies that Realtors may not provide any information that might "steer" buyers from or towards any specific property or neighborhood.

So, how does a buyer find answers? Personal research. Where possible, talk to neighbors. Ask if there are issues you should know about. Search online for neighborhood crime statistics and the proximity of sexual offenders.

Bottom line? Since you will be the one living there, it's in your best interest to search for answers on your own, rather than rely on carefully crafted answers from someone on the other side of the transaction.

*Some listing agents provide reasons in documents such as Instructions for Writing an Offer.

Take the 'Pane' Out of Window Repair

By Samantha Mazzotta
Special to the Times

Replacing a single glass pane is a pretty straightforward job, one that can be accomplished quickly once you have the supplies and tools at hand.

If the original pane was shattered, the exact dimensions need to be figured out. Do this by measuring the width and height of the frame. Then, subtract 1/16 inch from each side — this will allow a bit of space for the new glass to expand and contract in changing temperatures.

When cleaning up broken glass from a window, save the small metal tabs or spring clips that were spaced around the frame. Keep them around to reuse; otherwise, you'll need to buy replacements. They're called glazier's points and are used in wooden frames; the spring clips are used in metal frames. These help hold the windowpane snugly in place.

Now, head for the hardware store with measurements in hand. Most stores will sell pre-cut windowpanes in standard sizes that match or nearly match your measurements; otherwise, they can cut the glass to your specified size.

Carefully remove all of the broken glass and scrape away the old putty to prepare the frame for the new pane.

Make sure you have the following on hand for the repair: Window putty (also known as glazier's putty), a putty knife, glazier's points or spring clips (for metal frames), a wire brush, steel wool, fine-grit sandpaper and a soft cloth.

Clean up the frame to prepare it for the new pane. Take out any remaining points or clips and carefully scrape away the old window putty. This may be the most time-consuming part, as the putty may have hardened and adhered to the frame. Be patient and work carefully.

Once the old putty is removed, wipe the frame clean. Then add a new line of putty by forming a ball in the palm of your hand. Roll it out into a long, thin line, about the width of a pencil. Press this line of putty around the edge of the frame on the side on which the new pane will be attached.

Insert the new pane of glass, pressing it against the new putty. Hold it in place with one hand, and with the other hand, insert glazier's points or clips. Points should be placed every 8 inches around the frame and pressed into the wood using the putty knife or a similar tool. Clips can be placed in existing holes in the metal frame.

Use a little more putty to secure the pane on the side closest to you, by dabbing it into areas where the glass touches the frame. Scrape away excess with the putty knife.

Clean excess putty from the window and the frame using the putty knife and a wet cloth. Let the putty dry and cure for about four days before painting.

Home Tip: Wear heavy work gloves to protect your hands when removing or cleaning up pieces of broken glass, especially when prying shards loose.

Poet Jeffrey Leong to Talk about Chinese Wall Poems

Poet and writer Jeffrey Leong will discuss the traditional Chinese wall poems on Thursday, Oct. 13, at 7 p.m. at the San Leandro History Museum, 320 West Estudillo Ave. Admission is free.

Leong will talk about the poems, the process of translating Chinese characters into English, and the poems written on the walls at the Angel Island U.S. Immigration Station.

The wall poems of Angel Island were written in several languages between 1910 and 1940, but the overwhelming majority were written in Chinese and often carved into the wood. Many of the poems are still visible on the walls today.

Most of the poems were written in the style of classical Chinese poetry, which originated during the T'ang Dynasty, the years from 618 and 907. The majority of the poems were unsigned and undated, but were most likely written in the 1930s.

Leong is a poet and writer, born in Southern California and raised in the San Francisco Bay Area. For over two decades, he worked as a public health administrator and attorney for the City of San Francisco.

Leong recently earned his MFA in writing from the Vermont College of Fine Arts, and while there, began a project to translate the Chinese wall poems at the Angel Island Immigration Station. He is currently seeking a publisher for his manuscript, "Wild Geese Sorrow." His own writing focuses on the Asian American experience including adoption, multiracial families, and student activism during the 1960s.

Leong's poetry and prose have appeared in many publications including "Crab Orchard,"

"Cimarron Review," "Bamboo Ridge," "Hyphen" and "Spillway." In past lives he has been a singer-songwriter, disc jockey, high school teacher, and open mike host. He lives with his wife and daughter in San Leandro.

Don't miss this wonderful opportunity to learn about the poetry of Angel Island.

Pot: Government control over free market

The first permit was given to Harborside in 2015 after a months-long selection process. But the subsequent two permits were approved within weeks of each other – one for Davis Street Wellness Center and one for Blum – two operations with connections to City Hall.

Davis Street Family Resource Center director Rose Johnson is the Wellness Center's director of community benefits. In 2012, the City Council proclaimed May 15 "Rose Padilla Johnson Day." Gordon Galvan, a city councilman in the 1990s, is the Wellness Center's director of governmental relations. And former City Councilwoman Diana Souza's son works for Blum and she was involved in their application process for the permit.

Councilman Benny Lee, who has abstained from votes regarding the city's medical marijuana polices, has long been vocal about his concerns about the selection process.

City Councilman Benny Lee Says He Still Has Doubts

"I still have some issues with the openness of it," said Lee at Monday's meeting. He said the process should have been re-opened to any interested candidates rather than selecting from the first group that applied years back.

City Attorney Richard Pio Roda said the moratorium will allow the city to see how marijuana sales go once the existing dispensaries open, especially in light of the possible legalization of recreational marijuana in California.

"We can see where this shakes out in regards to legalization," said Pio Roda. "It may be a good time to pump the breaks."

High Tax on Medical Pot a Hardship for those Suffering

Editor:

Two articles dated Sept. 15, "Cutter Wants a Third Pot Shop" and Sept. 22, 2016, "Pot Permits Go to City Hall Cronies" talk about adding more marijuana dispensaries for more income, city taxes.

You are talking about taxing the disabled and sick people of San Leandro who are in pain. They are already suffering from not only medical problems but from financial hardship, as well.

I guess they are not suffering enough. Let's put another burden on their backs.

These clinics already charge top prices, excessive prices. One-eighth of an ounce, about the size of your thumb, costs $85 or more. Whereas the street price is $20 to $25, and the actual cost of the produce is more like $2.

By adding more clinics there just might be competition, which might lead to lower prices. The marijuana clinics and the city are money hungry and do not care about the patient.

These are San Leandro citizens, people who are suffering from pain and sickness.

'Another Falsehood Provided By Our Favorite Windbag'

Editor:

For Leo T. West to in very his own words ("Calls for Jobs and Housing for Workers," Letters, Aug. 25): "I can prove with certainty that anyone can vote more than 10 times on election day."

Has he forgotten his spurious claim already and is this just another falsehood provided by our favorite local windbag?

Gun Club Closing: Answer to Vernon Burton's Question

Editor:

Mr. Burton stated he was having difficulty figuring out how the closure of the Chabot Gun Club harms police firearms training ("Wonders How Shut-Down of Gun Club Harms Cop Training," Letters, Sept. 29).

Allow me to help him understand.

While the range was open Friday through Monday to the public, Tuesday through Thursday were reserved for law enforcement. Regular users included four East Bay police departments, Moraga, Berkeley, Piedmont and Emeryville, as well as government contractors, Federal Correction Institute, U.S. Department of Justice, U.S. Coast Guard and Military Sealift Command.

If Mr. Burton believes that lead sinkers in the waters of Lake Chabot are less of a contamination threat than lead bullets in the dirt berms a mile from the lake, he faces much bigger challenges than the "intellectually bankrupt" he accuses of conjuring up red herrings.

That, plus his decision to, if in need of assistance, "pass on the police and try to appeal to the better angels of the perp" indicates he might be cognitively challenged, something I wish him success in dealing with.

Accuses Burton of Turning Gun Club Debate Into a Race Issue

Editor:

I read Vernon Burton's letter (see above) and realized it was the same rhetoric that usually spews forth from his one-sided letters....until the last paragraph. He turned a debate about closing a long established club – open to everyone – into a race issue.

Nicely done Mr. Burton, work on being part of the solution, not the problem.

I do love pound cake. It has to be made right, though. If it's nice and moist and sweet, you want to come back for more.

Probably banana cream pie. It's the flavor and it's rich and if the white frosting is really good.

Apple pie. My grandmother used to make apple pie when we were kids and we had it every summer.

BART: Many tax measures on the ballot

ers and the Kersten Institute for Public Policy – who wrote the rebuttal argument, say that BART squanders its money and the life of the bond is far too long.

The argument states that despite the fact BART says the money will go to repairs and expansion of the system, it may

St. James Lutheran Yard Sale on October 15

St. James Lutheran Church, 993 Estudillo Ave. in San Leandro, is holding a church-wide yard sale on Saturday, Oct. 15, from 8 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Earthy treasures for sale include art, books, collectibles, household items, games, toys, clothing, sports and exercise equipment, jewelry and more.

Also offered will be breakfast burritos and other treats.

This fun family-friendly community event supports the ministries of St. James Lutheran Church and is open to everyone.

indirectly fund salaries. It goes on to say the average compensation of a BART employee including benefits is almost $132,000 annually, and that BART mishandled labor agreements following the 2013 strikes that snarled the Bay Area commute.

The BART bond would run about $17.50 per $100,000 of assessed property value through 2036 if it receives two-thirds voter approval.

If Measure RR passes, the estimated total cost including principal and interest over the life of the bond would be $6.8 billion.

For the other measures on the Nov. 8 ballot no argument against the measures have been submitted and none will appear on the ballot.

Those measures are a $500 million affordable housing bond from the county, a $96 annual parcel tax from AC Transit, a $250 million bond from the Hayward Area Recreation District, a $104 million bond from the school district, and three tax measures from the City of San Leandro.

If all the new tax measures and bonds pass, someone who lives in an area where they all apply in a home with an assessed value of $500,000 would pay a total of $578.50 more in annual property tax than they are currently paying.

BART says Measure RR, a $3.5 billion bond, would upgrade its tracks, repair tunnels and replace the 44-year-old train control system. Opponents say BART squanders its money, the life of the bond is too long, and the money might indirectly go to salaries.
