Clinipace Expands

Spectra Builders recently completed an expansion for Clinipace Worldwide in Morrisville, N.C. A global full-service digital clinical research organization (CRO), Clinipace has pioneered an innovative service model to transform drug and medical device development that serves the unique needs of emerging and mid-tier life sciences firms.

Spectra added offices, a break room, and a conference/board room featuring glass wall tiles, bamboo flooring and other high-end finishes throughout. This project was completed for Clinipace through Duke Realty, one of the largest commercial real estate companies in the United States.

Triangle Arthritis & Rheumatology Associates' new office building in Raleigh.

New Building For Triangle Arthritis

Triangle Arthritis and Rheumatology Associates recently purchased a building in Raleigh, N.C., that formerly housed a travel agency. Triangle, and Pamela S. Michael, Sr. Vice President of Jones Lang LaSalle Americas, Inc., with 1,000 locations serving 70 countries, hired Spectra Builders to gut the entire building and transform it into a doctor's office. After several weeks of working with Raleigh's Hagersmith Design, PA, the plans for the remodel were ready.

Extensive reworking of the existing structure was done to open up the space and make it more functional for a physician's office. Millwork, wood framing, a new shingle roof, wood and metal doors, ceramic tile, drywall, vinyl plank flooring, carpet, an elevator and much more were able to give the building the look and feel of an exceptionally well-appointed doctor's office. Project manager Joe Ramey did an outstanding job on this project, as well as on the Clinipace expansion.
