CCPA Privacy Rights (Do Not Sell My Personal Information)

This section supplements our Privacy Policy with additional information for California residents only. The California Consumer Privacy Act ("CCPA") provides specific protections and rules with respect to California's own definition of "Personal Information," which includes information that identifies, relates to, describes, is reasonably capable of being associated with, or could reasonably be linked, directly or indirectly, with a particular individual or household. Under the CCPA, among other rights, California consumers have the right to:

Request that a business that collects a consumer's personal data disclose the categories and specific pieces of personal data that a business has collected about consumers.

Request that a business delete any personal data about the consumer that a business has collected.

Request that a business that sells a consumer's personal data, not sell the consumer's personal data.

In accordance with the CCPA, for California residents only, if you make a request, we have one month to respond to you. If you would like to exercise any of these rights, please contact us. We will not deny services, charge different prices, offer a different quality of service or otherwise discriminate against you for exercising your rights under the CCPA.
