WHAT SHOULD I KNOW TO BEGIN?

Learning to fly requires time, motivation, dedication and financial resources. Earning a private pilot license demands a minimum of 40 hrs of flight time, but 50-60 hrs of flight time/instruction is normal to complete. In addition to the flight instruction, you must pass a practical flight and oral evaluation with a designated pilot examiner in addition to a timed FAA multiple choice written exam. The required ground instruction can be done one-on-one with a certified instructor or via an on-line computer-based course, which is a less costly alternative. All-in-all, you should anticipate that earning your license will cost approximately $12,000 and take anywhere from 3 to 12 months depending on your daily/weekly availability.
